ALTITUDE SICKNESS

About Your Stay

What Causes Altitude Sickness?

Higher altitudes have lower levels of oxygen and decreased air pressure. When you travel in a plane, drive or hike up a mountain, or go skiing, your body may not have enough time to adjust. This can result in acute mountain sickness. Your level of exertion also plays a role. Pushing yourself too quickly hike up a mountain, for example, may cause acute mountain sickness.

What are the Symptoms of Mild Altitude Sickness?

If you have a mild case, you may experience

- Dizziness
- Headache
- Muscle aches
- Insomnia
- Nausea and vomiting
- Rapid heartbeat
- Shortness of breath with physical exertion
- Irritability
- Loss of appetite
- Swelling of the hands, feet and face

Call 911 or seek emergency medical attention as soon as possible if you're experiencing any severe symptoms. The condition is much easier to treat if you address it before it progresses

TRAVELING WITH PETS

About Your Stay

PUPPY ETIQUETTE

BE NEIGHBORLY

Please be mindful of your pets' barking. If you are leaving your pet in the rental, have a favorite blanket and some white noise to comfort your dog while you are away.

PICK UP THE POOP

Please pick up your dogs poop piles in the yard.

HIKING WITH YOUR DOG

Check the trails before you go if your dog is able to come with you. Dogs are not permitted on any trails in Rocky Mountain National Park.

BEWARE OF WILDLIFE

We have wild animals here in Estes Park. Many, such as moose, will consider your dog a predator and will attack if provoked. Please keep your dog on a leash when walking or hiking especially if your dog has a strong prey drive.

Sit. Stay. Have fun! 5

RESOURCES

Here are some helpful, local resources to help you make the most of your trip with your fur baby.

NEVER LEAVE YOUR DOG IN THE CAR

In Colorado, there is a Good Samaritan law, making it legal to break the car window to help get the pet out. Even on a 65° day when it's sunny outside, your car can be over 90° in just 10 minutes. You could be charged with animal cruelty, resulting in a fine of up to $999 or one year in jail.

DOG PARK

There is a dog park located off of Route 36 along the shore of Lake Estes.
